

SHEGUIANDAH FIRST NATION

A New Community Asset at Ten Mile Point

Sheguiandah First Nation Chief and Council are pleased to share that our community will be purchasing the Ten-Mile Point Craft property an important community asset with the potential to support culture, heritage, local artisans and sustainable economic development.

With community guidance, Ten Mile Point will become a welcoming place where members gather, knowledge is shared, and visitors experience Sheguiandah created arts, crafts and cultural programming in a respectful way.

Our vision:

- Opportunities for Sheguiandah artists, makers, cultural educators and entrepreneurs to showcase and sell their work.
- Jobs, training, youth mentorship and community procurement opportunities.
- Markets, workshops, demonstrations, cultural programming and community gatherings.
- Indigenous tourism experiences guided by Sheguiandah's values, protocols and cultural authority.
- Long-term revenue and partnerships that strengthen the Nation's economic foundation and support community priorities.

This work will move forward thoughtfully. Community engagement and input, cultural safeguards, environmental responsibility and sound business planning will help shape the future of the site. Chief and Council will share engagement opportunities and further updates as planning progresses.

Together, we will build a place that strengthens community ties, celebrates Sheguiandah talent and creates meaningful opportunities for generations to come.

Miigwetch for your continued support.
